The zoo provides an open-range environment that emulates a variety of habitats that allow the animals to live freely as if they were in the wild. As you follow the trail through the outback, you may spot iconic Australian creatures such as kangaroos, koalas, Tammar wallabies and emus, flightless birds that can run up to 30 miles per hour. After a cup of tea and fresh-baked scones in the zoo's historical bluestone shearing shed, you will board an open-sided safari train and ride through the savannah. Elands, nyalas waterbucks and other antelopes are plentiful, but you can also expect to see rarer animals that are extinct in the wild. Board one of the world's most scenic railways as you journey through the spectacular Taieri River Gorge. Welcomed aboard by a friendly crew, settle into your carriage, and get ready for a breathtaking trip into a landscape only accessible by this train. First tracing Otago Harbor, then traversing suburban Dunedin and a fertile plain, you'll soon be climbing into the sheer cliff faces and plunging ravines of the Taieri River Gorge. Much of the ride takes place high atop soaring stone-and-lattice viaducts that early engineers, masons, and railway gangs somehow managed to build through extremely challenging wild New Zealand terrain. The fact that they succeeded is a true marvel – which you get to experience firsthand today. As you relax and watch in awe, your carriage will pass one unspoiled panorama after another, winding its way through the gorge over dramatic bridges suspended high above the placid river below, and through no fewer than 10 tunnels carved out of solid bedrock. You'll enjoy a light picnic style boxed lunch while on board. Your journey concludes either at Dunedin Railway Station, a suitably grand Victorian landmark, or continue back to your awaiting ship.

- Settle back and experience one of the world's most breathtakingly scenic railway journeys.
- Travel over countless latticed-steel and stone bridges and through 10 tunnels as you traverse the rugged Taieri River Gorge.
- Take it all in from the civilized comfort of your carriage with morning tea and a light lunch served.
- Disembark at Dunedin's landmark Victorian railway station, where you can opt to remain in town awhile or return straightaway to the port.
- Wear comfortable clothing; a light raincoat is recommended.
- Bring sun protection as needed.

Although there is minimal walking on this tour, guests must be able to get on and off the railway cars – which requires managing three to four high steps. A wheelchair-accessible railway car might be available if requested in advance. There may be some wait times while boarding the train and again when returning to Dunedin Railway Station, once you've boarded the train, you may not disembark until tour end. Depending on the scheduled return time, free time allocated may be allocated at Dunedin Train Station as the train can only return to the port at certain times. Time permitting at the end of the tour, guests may go on their own to explore town but are responsible for getting back to the ship on time. Dunedin town is located 30 minutes from Port Chalmers where the ship is docked. Where possible, the train departs and returns to Port Chalmers and your ship. Depending on timing however, the journey between the port and Dunedin Railway Station may be replaced by coach transfer.

DUD-008 PRIDE OF THE SOUTHBREWERY & OTAGO MUSEUM

Duration: 5.75 Hrs Tour Price: $0.00

Retail Price: $199.00

Date: January 07, 2027 10:45 AM

Sample the beers made at a landmark Dunedin brewery and delve into the region's natural history at the Otago Museum. Speight's Brewery, a Dunedin icon since it opened its doors in 1876, has done as little as possible to change with the times. Still in its original eight-story location above a natural spring that imparts trademark flavor to its wares, this gravity-fed brewery is one of just two in the world still using an open-style vat to create beers from the original recipes. Sampling several varieties, you'll find some that deliver a distinctive 19th-century tang. A stop for lunch at a nearby alehouse often involves fresh cod fried in batter made with Speight's beer. Then it's on to history of another type as you browse the Stories of the South exhibit in the Otago Museum, showing how this region's magnificently rugged landscape has shaped the lives of all who've settled here. The museum also boasts the world's largest collection of extinct moa skeletons and the country's largest fossil, a 23-foot-long aquatic plesiosaur. Your return trip to the pier includes a photo stop at the much-celebrated Dunedin Railway Station, built in checkered Edwardian Baroque style in 1906.

- Tour an iconic gravity-fed brewery that's been making its beer the same way since the 19th century.
- Sample a range of their beers, including some that really do have a delicious ancient taste.
- Browse the exhibits at the Otago Museum, where this region's natural and cultural history are shown to be connected.
- Enjoy a hearty alehouse lunch, and capture Instagram-worthy photos of one of the fanciest railway station facades you've ever seen.

PIC-006 QUEEN CHARLOTTE SOUNDS ROUND THE BAYS

Duration: 2.50 Hrs Tour Price: $0.00

Retail Price: $129.00

Date: January 09, 2027 09:30 AM

Cruise pristine Queen Charlotte Sound by catamaran, surrounded by beauty as you explore the rugged shoreline. Like the other sounds that combine to form the Marlborough Sounds network, Queen Charlotte was formed when deep river valleys filled with seawater at the end of the last ice age. The result is a meandering wonderland of azure separated by steep green hills and laced with alluring bays and coves. A few scattered settlements dot the otherwise-wild coastline, most of them so isolated they can only be reached by boat. In fact, this landscape hasn't changed much at all since James Cook sheltered here during his exploratory voyages in the 1770s. And that's the true beauty of it. Your own exploratory voyage begins right from the pier, aboard a comfortable catamaran designed for sightseeing on these typically calm waters. Rounding the bays, you'll be treated to panoramic views bound to capture your imagination as few other places can. Along the way, you'll loiter in Double Cove a while to feed the locals – who usually include hungry herring, mullet and cod. Don't be surprised to see king shag cormorants swooping in to feast too; they're highly skilled anglers.

- Be immersed in natural beauty on a catamaran cruise around Queen Charlotte Sound.
- Gaze in wonder at this network of river valleys swamped by the sea some 10,000 years ago.
- Round a rugged shoreline little changed from when Captain Cook sheltered here in the 1770s.
- In a quiet cove, spend time feeding grateful herring, mullet and cod – and watch cormorants swoop in for their share.
- Wear weather-appropriate clothing.
- Flat, comfortable walking shoes are recommended.
- Bring a hat, sunglasses and sunscreen as needed.

This tour is mostly seated with very limited walking, guests with mobility concerns are cautioned to carefully evaluate their personal level of stamina and ability to enter/exit the catamaran with limited assistance. Wildlife sightings, while likely, are not guaranteed.
